

Previewing the DDL2021 Virtual Conference

Due to COVID-19, Drug Delivery to the Lungs 2021, (DDL2021) will be presented live online, December 8-10, replacing the in-person event originally planned for the same dates in Edinburgh, UK. Conference highlights will include scientific presentations, a sponsor exhibition, awards and the New Researcher Network Discussion Forum.

Live and on-demand presentations

This year, the prestigious DDL Annual Lecture will be presented by Dr. Sabine Häussermann.

DDL2021 will focus on the following themes:

- Changing the treatment paradigm in asthma
- The inhaled dose—How much goes where?
- Lessons learnt from treating COVID with therapeutic aerosols
- Targeting the brain and the body via the nose

Live presentations will be given by invited speakers and live FLASH presentations will be selected from submitted conference papers. In addition, a number of on-demand presentations will be selected from the conference paper submissions.

Content will be presented in a single stream, enabling attendees to view all of the conference's live content.

New Researcher Network Discussion Forum

Launched in 2018, the New Researcher Network aims to develop a broad community of early career scientists and facilitate discussion surrounding research ideas and challenges, joint projects, and personal and professional development. New and early career researchers from academia and industry, as well as PhD students, are encouraged to participate in the group, which has expanded to include a LinkedIn networking group.

Awards

DDL2021 will include the Pat Burnell Young Investigator Competition, in which finalists will present virtual, live, platform presentations and the winner will be named during the conference. The DDL Emerging Scientist Award will also be given to a scientist who has demonstrated significant scientific accomplishment or innovation during the early stages of a career in inhalation science, within 15 years of achieving a PhD.

See the DDL2021 website for more information about sponsorships, the exhibition and complimentary registration for students.
